Jewll Industries

From the ground up

The late J. van der Lingen was involved in the manufacturing of flameproof enclosures since June 1983. Mr. Van der Lingen headed the flameproof section for 14 years at a company that manufactured various types of enclosures. His main responsibility was the design and manufacture of flameproof products. Since the inception of the flameproof section and for a number of years thereafter he was responsible for the examining of all the flameproof products of the company. W. van der Lingen was involved in the manufacturing of flameproof products on a part-time basis for ten years and then a further three years in a full-time capacity. He attended courses in the inspection of flameproof enclosures and passed the SABS examination in 1996, thereby qualifying as an inspector.

Until recently the company had two directors namely W. van der Lingen and H. van der Lingen. W. van der Lingen has now been joined by G.J. Jackson and G. Nezar; of which are all active members and also working on the premises on a full-time basis.

What comes through the most is to me is how Jewll has contributed to my own growth over the years as a person, as an employee and as a friend. Hopefully, also how to be a leader to others. Jewll has always been my second home, no matter where I've been at in my personal journey. Jewll has taught me everything I know about business and more. Words can never be enough gratitude for my mentors in Jewll, for being my family. Congratulations to the first 27 years and thank you so much for my own decade here. Safety first, always. I am so grateful to be a part of this story."
